Colgate meeting minutes

HRBC Critique and Context

- HRBC flagged as poorly run: no market study, unclear pricing, no defined target audience
- App engagement very low: under 3% of active users rating/reviewing
- Marketing team criticized as ineffective, including “Elvin Edmund” (nepotism hire)
- General consensus: the team could do a better job

Creative Strategy: “Share Share” Campaign for Colgate (Valet La Brief)

- Big idea: “Make More Smiles,” translated across ATL, on-ground, and KV touchpoints
- Social-first, 360 holistic plan; KV still being crafted
- Key findings from research:
 - Three-year platform stronger than a single campaign
 - Halal logo buried at back of pack, not front-facing like McDonald’s
 - “One house fasting, one house feasting” insight (Colgate in both bathrooms)
 - Dual-festival campaigns (e.g. Gong Si Raya) have a history of backlash in Malaysia
- Three campaign objectives:
 - Win hearts of Malay and broader Malaysian audience
 - Own the concept of sharing through to the actual Gong Si Raya day, sustained for three years
 - Drive sales penetration during festive season
- Pivot: move beyond Gong Si Raya clichés
 - Gong Si Raya seen as superficial, clashing ideologies (Eid = spiritual rebirth vs. CNY = prosperity/fortune)
 - Risk of cultural appropriation, lazy brand perception, and lack of strategic longevity
- The “Share Share” idea:
 - Phonetic and cultural pivot rooted in Malaysian colloquial language

- “Gong Xi” sounds like “share share” in Malay; “Xie Xie” (谢谢) means “thank you” in Mandarin
 - Dual meaning: sharing kindness, gratitude, positivity
 - Colgate to own the term “Share Share” as a keyword, hashtag, and campaign anchor
- Three-year roadmap:
 - 2027: establish “Share is the new norm”
 - 2028: deepen the idea (overlapping festive seasons)
 - 2029: fully own “Share Share” (CNY and Raya fall side by side)

Brand Film and Webisode Format

- Story concept: young couple, Arena 1 (girl) and Han Hakim (guy), love story with a plot twist
 - Girl’s mother sets her up; the blind date turns out to be Han Hakim himself
 - Both characters navigate cultural differences through smiles and support
- Format: webisodes instead of one-off festive films
 - Three episodes for CNY, three for Ramadan/Raya, shot together as one production
 - Each episode ends on a cliffhanger to drive audience retention
 - Inspired by Indonesian web series model and Netflix mini-series format
 - Ads run as trailers linking to episodes; content calendar shifts weekly around episode launches
- Casting concern raised: Arena 1 is Chinese Muslim, which may alienate Chinese Buddhist audience
 - Risk: Chinese community may read “convert to Islam” as “becoming Malay”
 - Suggestion: consider a non-convert Chinese character to keep both audiences engaged
 - Counter: story can show Han Hakim experiencing Chinese New Year with Arena 1’s family to balance representation
 - Agreed: storyline is a placeholder; can be adjusted after client feedback
- Strategic messaging pillars:
 - Disconnection (real tension in Malaysia) → Shared smile → Harmony (we are family)

Activations, Digital Strategy, and Next Steps

- On-ground and social activations proposed:

- CNY: IG story templates, ChatGPT-integrated family photo greeting generator, ampao designs, origami red packet
 - Raya: “Share Share” selfie contest, ambassador tips, share-share playlist
 - Ramadan: sampling activation (Colgate sample + buka puasa moment)
 - Product: suggest Colgate gold pack for CNY (precedent: 100 Plus gold can campaign)
- Digital strategy:
 - Own “Share Share” as a paid keyword and hashtag
 - Webisode trailers as Meta/IG ads with swipe-up links
 - Always-on content layered around episode drops
 - Potential in-store teaser screens (e.g. supermarket TVs)
- Presentation deadline pushed to 20th; internal review call with “Go Pic” to be set up over the weekend
- Elf to help tweak the CNY storyline and prepare a simple storyboard/mood reference for the film
- Talent profiles (Arena 1, Han Hakim) to be included in the deck before presenting the story
- WPP/VML agency positioning: strategy is to go under WPP for the pitch; focus on creative direction first

Next Steps

- Tweak CNY storyline and prepare storyboard/mood reference (Elf)
- Client needs a visual feel for the webisode; casting is placeholder and can change based on feedback.
- Set up internal review call with Go Pic over the weekend
- Run through the full deck before the 20th deadline; leaves 3 days for tweaks after her feedback.
- Add talent profiles (Arena 1, Han Hakim) to the presentation deck
- Client needs to see profiles before the story is presented.
- Prepare digital/media translation slide
- Show how all activations and content ladder up into the paid media and keyword ownership strategy.
